CASE DESCRIPTION / SUMMARY

Facts :

- Petitioner deposited ₹34,67,438 as pre-deposit for filing appeal against stamp duty demand.
- The original demand order was set aside and matter remanded; ultimately no demand survived.
- Despite this, refund was delayed for several years and only principal amount was returned without interest.
- Petitioner filed writ seeking interest on the delayed refund amount.

Court Decision:

- Retention of petitioner's money after setting aside demand was unauthorised.
- Even in absence of statutory provision, interest is payable based on principles of restitution.
- State cannot retain money without compensating the party for deprivation of its use.
- Non-payment of interest while charging interest from assessee is discriminatory.

Directions:

- Petitioner entitled to simple interest @ 8% per annum.
- Interest payable from date of deposit (15.12.2005) till date of refund (29.05.2014).
- Respondents directed to pay interest within stipulated time.
- General mandamus issued to State to pay interest on refunds in similar cases.
